

MEET SHAUN BAILEY

I'm Shaun Bailey, a born and bred Londoner, son of Windrush immigrants – and the Conservative Party's candidate for Mayor of London.

My story is the story of so many Greater Londoners. Born in a council home, raised in a deprived part of London. I've faced the struggles that so many Londoners face every day – high crime, high rent, high fares.

To be honest, I'm not your typical politician. I've been a youth worker, a community organiser and a charity worker – jobs where you make a real difference to people's lives.

That's why I want to be Mayor of London – to make a difference. To tackle the problems that we all face. Because if we work together, we can make a difference to Greater London.

As a former youth worker, Shaun knows how to keep our young people safe.

GREENER TRANSPORT – NOT MORE TAXES

All Londoners want our city to be a healthy place to raise our families. Having lived in inner and outer London, I know the difference a cleaner environment makes.

Like many Londoners, I've got asthma. So clean air isn't really a choice – it's a necessity. But Sadiq Khan just hasn't kept his promises. Instead of planting millions of trees, he's expanding his Ultra-Low Emission Zone to cover most of London – without providing any greener ways of getting round town.

So it's really just a tax – and it will hit the poorest harder than anyone.

We need to fix the financial mess at TfL. That's why I'll replace London's dirty bus fleet. Introduce an electric car-sharing scheme. And promote walking and cycling.

The health of all Londoners depends on it.

Shaun will promote a greener transport system.

HOMES THAT LONDONERS CAN ACTUALLY AFFORD

Like so many Londoners, I had a long and difficult journey to get on the housing ladder.

And growing numbers of people in Greater London are finding homes more and more unaffordable.

So we need an action plan to build homes that Londoners can actually afford.

That means using derelict or abandoned sites for new homes. It means ending Sadiq Khan's ban on building on brownfield sites.

It means stopping developers doing nothing with land. I'll use The Mayor's powers to get developers building – because we can't afford to wait.

And it means working with the Government to tackle rogue landlords. Helping to protect people who rent.

With the right plan, we can bring down the cost of homes and help more Londoners get on the housing ladder.

My Crime Action Plan

1 1,000 more police on the streets

By cutting waste at City Hall and adopting new technology, we can hire at least 1,000 more police officers. So we all get safer streets.

3 800 more detectives

To tackle violent crime, we need to stop young people joining gangs. That means tackling the gang leaders. I'll hire 800 more detectives – so they can prosecute the gang leaders introducing young people to lives of crime.

2 Zero-tolerance approach to violent crime

I'll work with Government to bring in mandatory sentences for acid and moped attacks. Putting our most dangerous criminals behind bars.

4 More opportunities for young people

It's not just about zero-tolerance. We need to help young people stay in school, get involved in their community and access to job and training opportunities. So I'll work with councils and communities across London – to help young people stay off the streets and in employment.

CUT CRIME WITH NEARLY 2,000 EXTRA POLICE

“It doesn't need to take ten years to turn the tide on crime; with the right support and prevention, change can be around the corner.”

Knife crime is rising across Greater London. And Sadiq Khan doesn't have a plan to tackle it.

With growing numbers of Londoners worried about their safety, it's time to take action.

I was a youth worker – helping to keep young people out of gangs. So while politics might not come naturally to me, I know how to get things done. That's why I've got an action plan to tackle violent crime.

I'll cut waste at City Hall and hire 1,000 more police officers. That means more police on our streets – keeping you and your family safe.

And I'll hire 800 more detectives. They can catch the gang leaders and take them off our streets.

But we also need to stop the conveyor belt of young people joining gangs.

And the way to do that is to give our young people more opportunities. That means more jobs, more apprenticeships and more training funded directly by City Hall.

So I'll work with communities across London to put this plan into action. Taking a zero-tolerance approach to violent crime – and keeping our young people off the streets.

MY CRIME ACTION PLAN

- Put more bobbies on the beat.
- Fight for tougher sentences.
- Tackle violent crime.
- Support gang prevention.

EALING COUNCIL AXE STOP & SHOP BAYS AND MAKE CPZ BAYS 24/7

Labour have scrapped Stop and Shop Bays.

LOW RES 62 DPI

■ Stop & Shop Bays are essential to keeping our high streets and shopping parades thriving, by allowing a short period of free parking outside shops. The current Labour Council plans to kill off passing trade by removing this lifeline to local shops, risking businesses and leading to empty shops on our high streets.

Back in 2017, when Ealing Council last attempted to remove Stop & Shop bays, Conservative Councillors joined forces with residents and local businesses, forcing the Council into a U-turn.

The fact that less than 2 years later these plans are back again, shows how little the Council values our high streets by putting them at risk.

LIBRARIES CLOSED. ALLOWANCES RAISED.

■ Local Labour councillors rejected our plan to keep seven libraries and eleven children centres open and instead voted to increase councillor allowances.

Ealing Council announced plans to withdraw council support from seven libraries in the borough, including Northfields, Pitshanger, West Ealing and Hanwell libraries. In 2011, when they were last under threat, some will remember that we ran a successful community campaign that persuaded the Council to keep our libraries open.

Northfield Ward Councillor David Millican, is so keen to keep Northfields Library open that he has been working with the community to find solutions, including putting possible volunteers in touch with the Head of Libraries. We have also collected close to 2,000 signatures calling on the Council to reconsider their plans.

Our costed plan to scrap the Special Responsibility Allowances that some councillors receive, would save c.£400,000 a year. Money that should put back into front line services such as libraries and children centres. Instead of supporting this plan, local Labour councillors voted to increase allowances.

Labour in the Town Hall have closed our libraries.

Labour chose to close our libraries while raising councillor allowances.

LABOUR BLOCK RESIDENT'S DEMANDS FOR INJUNCTION ON ILLEGAL ENCAMPMENTS

Over the last five years, Ealing had the second highest number of unauthorised encampments in London.

■ As a result, Ealing Common Councillor Joanna Dabrowska worked with residents on a petition to valiantly try and persuade Ealing Council to secure a borough-wide injunction aimed at preventing these.

The Council refused to see sense and did not even agree to look into taking such action. This is despite Government advice that local authorities can consider a court application for a pre-emptive injunction against unauthorised encampments.

Labour once again put their political agenda above the needs of residents, using their massive majority on the Council to ignore residents' concerns.

Labour have failed to put the needs of local residents first.

CONSERVATIVE HEALTH SECRETARY CONFIRMS THAT EALING AND CHARING CROSS A&ES TO REMAIN OPEN

■ The Health Secretary, Matt Hancock MP, announced in Parliament on 26th March that the Department of Health no longer supports the local NHS Shaping a Healthier Future plan and confirmed that proposed changes to Ealing & Charing Cross A&E departments "would not happen".

In fact, Ealing Hospital has seen new services open in the last few months, including a new dedicated pioneering day care heart failure unit.

This comes at a time when the Conservative Government is investing £20.5 billion a year extra in real terms by 2023-2024 in our NHS. The accompanying Long-Term Plan will transform patient care and make sure every penny of taxpayers' money is spent wisely.

The plan will ensure the NHS provides the best maternity care in the world, supports ageing and increasing independence, improves outcome for all major conditions, increases the workforce and brings the NHS into the digital age.

The Conservatives are investing an extra £20.5bn a year in our NHS by 2023-24.

Greg Stafford – your GLA Candidate for Ealing and Hillingdon.

GREG STAFFORD – YOUR GLA CANDIDATE

■ We are proud to announce that local councillor Greg Stafford has recently been selected as the Conservative candidate for Ealing and Hillingdon at the 2020 GLA elections.

A strong community campaigner, Greg intends to stand up for all Ealing's local communities at City Hall.

He will be a strong voice in opposing the Mayor of London's failed policies – with crime rising, housing becoming more expensive and out of reach for many local families, and transport becoming more crowded, more expensive and more congested.

With your help, Greg will work to bring about the change that Ealing needs from City Hall.
